THE PREFACE.

AS Youth is the Age of Life most capable of Instruction; and 'tis a Concern of the last Importance to learn betimes; for otherwise, in Cicero's Opinion, we very seldom, if ever, learn at all; each Attempt, how weak soever, to render the Study of the Sciences both easy and amiable, is in itself praise-worthy, and may with Modesty, lay claim to such a Share of the Indulgence of the Publick, as is, in some Degree, equal to its Merit.

Without depretiating therefore, or casting the least ill-natur'd Reflection on the Labours of those who have travelled in the same Road before us, we shall content ourselves with barely explaining the little Plan which we have here pursued.

In this compendious DICTIONARY, which may properly be looked upon as a Supplement to our GRAMMAR; any Parent, School-master, or Governess, will find a vast Variety of Words, of any particular Number of Syllables required, by inspecting only the Figures in the Margin, which denote the proper Division; and moreover, not only the double, as well as single Accents, where necessary, in order to prevent a vicious Pronunciation, but the several Parts of Speech to which they respectively belong; the little (f) on on the Right-hand, denoting the Word to be a Substantive ; the (a) an Adjective ; the (v) a Verb, and the (p) a Particle ; into which all the nine Branches of Grammar may, with Propriety, be resolved. And whenever the same Words are repeated, they will find the additional Letter always varied, and sometimes the Orthography, to shew that the Sense and Signification are widely distant. This Method, we humbly conceive, may not only be of Service to our little Natives, but to such Foreigners likewise, who are desirous of improving themselves in the Study of the English Tongue, and of pronouncing it in its Purity and Perfection.

We have but one Word more to add in favour of our Scheme, and that is, that no Dictionary of the Kind was ever before published, with so many thousand Words reduced into so narrow row a Compass; and should the Petite-ness of the Volume, if we may be allowed the Expression, and the Gaiety of its Dress, prove but an Allurement to the Fair-Sex (for whose Service it was principally intended) to make it their daily Pocket Companion; we shall think a few Leisure Hours in the Compilement, not only well bestowed, but very amply rewarded.
